

The above is the latest photo taken of the New Homestead Hotel at the Hot Springs, which is now nearly complete as to contour and will be ready for guests in the early spring. This picture was taken when the building was not hearly so far advanced as now. The unfinished parts here shown are now all under roof. The kitchen is shown to the left. The porch is to come all across the front with white columns one and a half stories high. The ball-room is to be built on the right hand.

(Special Dispatch to The Times.) HOT SPRINGS, VA., Feb. 8.—The new Homestead Hotel will be opened for guests by the 15th day of March at the the latest, and there is every reason to predict that it will at once be filled. The ruins of the old Homestead had not cooled after the fire of July 1st before the Virginia Hot Springs Company agreed upon the plans for the new build-ing, commenced clearing off the debris, and announced to the hetel world that it would have its new hotel open by March 1st. That it will come within two weeks of fulfilling its promise is something remarkable, when the difficulties it has had markable, when the difficulties it has had to contend with are considered.

While the habitues of the place will miss the long stretch of white which made the old Homestead a thing of beauty amidst its beautifully kept green lawns, yet the new building is an impressive one, with many features to attract the eye, and its distinguishing characteristic of solidity will inspire a sense eserts Her Husband for a Stranger and by him veserted,

(Special Dispatch to The Times.)

ERISTOL, TENN., Feb. 8.—A sensational scandal was brought to light at Hotel Nickels in Bristo to-day involving influential families.

Ten days ago a well-dressed stranger, accompanied by a handsome woman, appeared in Bristol and registered at the hotel as "John P. Wright and wife, Cin-cinnati." The man claimed to be the agent of a new patent electric device for rallway signalling. During last night Wright deserted the oman who came to the hotel with him and disappeared from the city.

The woman proved to be Mrs. Hund-ley, wife of a popular citizen of Taze-well, Va., whom she had deserted for the stranger. It is claimed that Wright promised Mrs. Hundley to take her far away and make her his wife.

Back of these alleged promises was a bit of intrigue to get Mrs. Hundley to her parents. Under the guise of a lady rriend of the family Wright wrote to the father of Mrs. Hundley, a wealthy citizen of Tazewell, Va., telling him that his daughter was in Bristol under distressing circumstances, and that she was liable to commit suicide if he did not come for her at once. The father reached Bristol this morning and took his daughter home. Wright left the Virginia and West Virginia's Debt.

Editor of The Times:

Sir,-Having noticed on your editorial page of the 29th uit, an inquiry emanat-ing from a holder of a West Virginia bond concerning its collection, settlement, etc., and also your answer stating that West Virginia has made no provision looking to a sttlement of the one-third portion of the old Virginia debt, which was set aside as her equitable share of said debt, what I wish to know, Mr. Editor, is this, what was the amount of the Old Virginia debt in 1871, or in the days of Readjustment, and has West Virginia ever accepted and agreed to pay one-third of the old Virginia debt? I also noticed a short time ago in The Times a report from the Auditor of Public Accounts, and one from ex-Governor Tyler, placing the State debt of Virginia at between twenty-six and twenty-seven million dollars. Does that include West Virginia's portion of the old Virginia cebt, or is it Virginia's undivided debt?

Peanut Narket,

Peanut Market,

(Special Dispatch to The Times.)

SUFFOLK, VA., Feb. S.—Notwithstanding the advance of the New York peanut market, which will be felt here sooner or later, the Suffolk questions on peanuts show a slight, depreciation compared with those of a week ago. The demand for factory goods is firm, but the receipts from the farmers are light. The prospects are that the prices will not get any lower. The largest cleaners here said this afternoon that 40 per cent, of the 1901 crop is yet in the hands of the farmers and simal speculations. Today's questions: Jumbo, 5c., fancy, 6c., extra. 3c.; No. 1 (Va.) shelled, dec.; No. 2 (Va.) shelled, 2 (Special Control of the Con
